JUNE 26 IS VOTED
BY HOUSE AS DATE
FOR ADJOURNMENT*Mass of Legislation Must be Acted on in Two Weeks.*GOVERNOR GETS THE CITY BILL*Clark Measure Hedged About by an Unhappy Number; Mayors Not Permitted to Succeed Themselves;
Measure Will Reach Governor Friday

Special to The Courier. HARRISBURG, June 11.—The House, during a stormy session last night, voted to adjourn for the session on June 26. Speaker Alt and other members opposed making a definite adjournment date on the ground that the Senate would be able to hold up important legislation, but they were overruled. The Senate has not yet agreed to adjournment and the Senators may decide to remain longer in session. The Plim men, who declared they would sit all summer before yielding to the Senate's stand in holding up "progressive" measures, voted in favor of adjournment June 10. Most of the important measures before the Legislature are yet to be acted on.

Governor Tener will likely get the Clark commission government bill for third-class cities on Friday. The measure has passed both houses, the amendments being agreed to. It is said that the Clark bill fails to permit mayors to succeed themselves, which eliminates one of the features likely to cause the Governor's disapproval. There were only four votes against the measure in both houses. The measure, number 13, is closely allied with the Clark bill. It was the thirteenth introduced in the Senate and was known as bill No. 13. It was reported out on February 25, which is twice 13. Thirteen persons spoke in favor of the bill before the committee, and although the records show 14 persons voted against the bill in the House, opponents of the measure may only 13 cast their ballots, one of the members recorded on the records having been absent from the session.

Governor Tener signed the bill prohibiting the insertion of folders or circulars within the pages of newspapers or magazines without consent of the publisher. The salary raising bill for the Department of Agriculture passed the House 155 to 3. The Snyder home rule bill, permitting any city in the state to draft or amend its own charter was placed on the House calendar despite a negative report by the committee. The House accepted the committee report and voted against the impeachment of Judge Charles A. N. Drum of Schuylkill County. Governor Tener vetoed the bill which would reduce the height of buildings in second-class cities. Important taxation bills were considered in the House, one being the measure to place a tax of 2 1/2 per cent. ad valorem on all anthracite coal, the counties to receive a share of the tax, and the other to place a personal property tax payable to counties instead of to the state. Further conferences between leaders are to be held in an effort to reach an agreement on the child labor bills. A maximum of 54 hours a week has been agreed upon. The Senate adjourned at noon until Monday.

BATH HELPS THIS THIEF*Woman's Modesty Prevents Her Chasing Him.

NEW YORK, June 11.—And there, behind a screen in the rear of her husband's fruit store in Poughkeepsie, Mrs. Samuel Gordon had to stand yesterday and watch a thief rob the cash register in plain sight. But the thief, apparently, was aware of conditions back of the screen, for as he departed, she laughed and said: "I dare you to chase me." Mrs. Gordon didn't chase. Back of the screen she took a bath. The thief entered the store. It was in the late afternoon hours and she expected no customers. "It was only $3 he got, but, dear me, it would have been the same if it were $300. Indeed, I would not have run out to catch him if it had been $3,000,000," she declared.

TEAM ROLLS OVER BANK.*Horses and Driver Have Miraculous Escape From Injury Today.

A team of horses owned by Contractor John Duggan and driven by Alfred Hahn took their footing while the wagon was being unladen at the top of a bank in the rear of Burgess J. L. Evans' home on Crawford avenue, this morning and wagon and horses rolled to the bottom. Neither horses nor driver was injured. The wagon was not damaged.

DUMPS LOAD IN STREET.*Spring Believers and Wagon Loose Quantity of Dirt on West Side.

A wagon hauling dirt from the excavation of the Presbyterian Church accidentally dumped its load in the middle of Main street on the West Side yesterday. The spring which holds the chain that releases the dirt slipped and the load was spilled. The driver borrowed a shovel and set to work heaving the dirt back into the wagon.

THREE PASS TEST FOR MINE
FOREMAN IN THIS DISTRICT*Six Others to Get Assistant's Certificate if Oral Examination is Satisfactory.

Mine Inspector P. J. Walsh of the Ninth District today announced the result of the examination for mine foreman and assistant mine foreman. The result of the fire boss test will not be known for several days.

Of the 24 men who took the examination, three qualified for first grade certificates and six for assistant's papers. They must, however, pass a satisfactory oral examination before being approved. This test, probably the most important of all, will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in the office of P. J. Walsh.

The three men passing for first grade mine foreman certificates were Isaac L. Davis of Lehighing No. 3, with a percentage of 84; Andrew Guldus, Hunker, 83 1/2; and W. B. Mitchell, Grindstone, 81.

The six men passing for assistant mine foreman's papers were Joseph Burns of Lehighing No. 1 with a percentage of 73 1/2; Milton Wheeler, Royal, 73 1/2; Elmer Swink, Adelade, 71 1/2; Edward J. Rowan, Vanderbilt, 71 1/2; Thomas Fassenbaker, Everon, 73 1/2; and John Metcalf, Bransell, 74 1/2.

BEGIN STRIKE PROBE*Sensors How Now Martial Law Came to Paint Creek.

United Press Telegram. CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 11.—The entire story of how martial law came to Paint Creek, how men, women and children were driven from their homes by mine guards employed by operators and how the military tribunal as judge and jury took the place of the court guaranteed under the constitution is being revealed in detail here today.

With the power of Government behind them, the five members of the education of labor committee of the Senate began hearings yesterday on the mine strike. Military officers are here with papers relating to the military trials, and are being called to the stand.

BENSCHREEK FLAME SWEEP*Mining Town Suffers $200,000 Loss in Big Fire.

United Press Telegram. JOHNSTOWN, June 11.—The business section of the mining town of Benschreek, on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad, was wiped out by fire this morning. The blaze started in the department store of Bernard Hender. The damage is estimated at from $100,000 and $200,000. Fifteen buildings were destroyed by the Benschreek railroad, was wiped out to check the progress of the flames. The town is the center of large coal operations. Among the largest of the operators are: The Pennsylvania Coal & Coke Company, the Lilly Coke Company and several smaller concerns.

BIG STOCK SLUMP*Supreme Court's Rife Decision Hits Securities Market.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The worst slump in the history of the securities market since the panic of 1907, nearly every prominent stock showed a decline of from 2 to 5 points from the closing price of the previous day occurred immediately following the opening of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday as a result of the decision handed down by the Supreme Court in the Minnesota rate case. While the bill roads, which were directly concerned in the decision, showed the heaviest losses, the slump carried down the prices of practically every railroad and industrial issue and many new low records covering a period of from one to five years were recorded.

WILL HELP CROPS.*Department of Agriculture Optimistic
Over the Cold Wave.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Officials of the Department of Agriculture believe that there will be no great or widespread damage to crops as a result of the unseasonably cold weather now prevailing over much of the country. The experts expressed the opinion that there need be no fear of a "vegetable famine" and said that despite predictions of the Weather Bureau that the cold spell will continue the next 36 hours, probably no great harm would be done to corn and other crops.

Early planting and the favorable condition of these crops are counted upon to offset any effect the weather may have.

DECIDES ON A NAME.*Local Organization is Called Connellsville Automobile Club.

The governors of the local automobile club have decided upon a name for their organization. It will be known as the Connellsville Automobile Club. A meeting will be held tomorrow night, at which the governors will submit for ratification a list of fifteen members prepared since the last meeting.

Members of the board of governors are John H. Work, G. E. Albrecht, Thomas Mills, J. L. Evans, Dr. C. S. Horner, George A. Munson, Harry Dunn, Frank Tarr and Ralph K. Long.

Badly Treated When He Asked to Have Excess Nickel Returned;
Other Minor Cases Tried in Court.

Special to The Courier. UNIONTOWN, June 11.—Suit in equity was filed today by the Prospect Coal & Coke Company against the Connellsville Central Coal & Coke Company in which the plaintiffs ask the court to issue a preliminary injunction to restrain the defendants from constructing a pipe line across the Gurich farm in Menallen township. The Prospect company owns this farm and contends that great damage will be done its operations if the pipe line is laid.

H. R. Romburg, a West Penn conductor, went on trial today on charges of aggravated assault and battery perpetrated by John Gurich, Gurich alleges that on February 13, he and three others boarded a car at Continental No. 1. Gurich paid the fares, he says, and found he had given 6 cents too much. When he asked that the money be returned, he alleges that Romburg kicked him in the face and beat him. Romburg was acquitted and Gurich sentenced for the costs in the case.

Frank Mazur pleaded guilty to aggravated assault and battery on John Vancovich at Continental No. 1. The testimony of both sides had been offered when the plea was entered.

Walter Rankin of Uniontown, charged with assault and battery by W. Wilmoth of Gratton, W. Va., was found guilty in a sealed verdict returned by the jury.

Cate O'Neil, a negro, was convicted for stealing a raincoat from Clyde F. Snell of Uniontown on May 24. Johnson R. Hutchcraft was arraigned this afternoon for the murder of Steve Fox at Fayette City on September 2. The jury is drawing a verdict which will be returned tomorrow.

Charles and Warren Redman were found not guilty of assaulting John Kurlik and the prosecutor was sentenced for the costs.

The costs were divided by the jury which acquitted August and Caroline Walk of malicious mischief, the charge being preferred by Eugene Marcel.

John Shandrich, in a sealed verdict, was acquitted of the various degrees of assault and battery preferred against him by Thomas Mayhew. The costs were divided.

Henry Jackson, a Uniontown negro, was acquitted of assault and battery, unlawful cutting and other charges preferred by R. Moore. The costs of prosecution were divided.

William Stewart, a negro, was acquitted of larceny of $5. He was directed to pay one-third the costs and Peter Slesky of Moyer will pay the rest.

John Oberle of Oliver No. 3 was acquitted of assault and battery. Mary Lupatovsky was the prosecutor. The costs were divided.

E. W. Horner of Connellsville has filed suit against I. P. Dalsley, administrator of the estate of Charles H. May, deceased, to recover $21.50 and interest from January 23, 1911. The plaintiff alleges that Charles H. May purchased a suit and other furnishings on December 23, 1910, which have not been paid for.

WILL PICNIC JUNE 19*Date is Decided for Annual Union Supply Outing.

The annual outing of the Union Supply Company will be held Thursday, June 19, at Oakford Park. The outing is confined strictly to the forces of the company and their families and friends. About 500 persons usually attend on special cars which will be run from different parts of the coke region and a special car attached to the Youghiogheny express will bring the office force from Pittsburg.

General Superintendent John Lynch has appointed the following committee to have charge of the picnic: E. B. Porter, assistant superintendent, chairman; William Barkell, chief clerk, Harry Carter, J. V. Brothers and J. R. Love, traveling auditors. Among the events being arranged is a ball game between the clerks of the Uniontown and Pittsburg offices against a team of employees from all over the region. William Barkell will manage the clerks' team and the employees' team will be managed by Store Manager O. M. Wallace of Lemon.

Arriving the 49 stores of the Union Supply Company will be closed on the day of the outing. The transportation and all other entertainment will be the exception of the dinner, will be free.

Grand Visor Announced. LONDON, June 11.—A news dispatch received this morning from Constantinople states that Mahmud Shevket Pasha, grand vizier of Turkey, has been assassinated.

Two Buy Autos. J. C. Detwiler of Pennsville has purchased an Overland automobile. A. H. Kurtz, the jeweler, has bought a Daimler-Benz from the Connellsville Garage.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS
TO PARADE IN UNIONTOWN*5,000 Will be in Line of March Tonight
When Large Procession is Held.

The big feature of the annual convention of the Fayette County Sunday School Association, now in session in Uniontown, will be the big parade this evening in which at least 5,000 men are expected to participate. Floats have been built and a number of bands engaged. Connellsville will be represented by a large delegation. Following the parade, J. Denny O'Neil of McKeesport will address the men at the Central Christian Church on "Booze and Politics."

The parade will move promptly at 7:45 o'clock and will be formed on Mt. Vernon, West Main and West Fayette streets. The march in which the different districts will be in parade is as follows: Districts Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

The line of parade is as follows: Move East on Main street to Morgantown street, go up Morgantown street to Fayette street, by Fayette street to East Main street and by Main street to the bank building, by Morgantown street to Church street and by Church street to the Central Christian Church. A meeting of the ladies will be held at the Third Presbyterian Church following the parade. A colored meeting will be held in the Second Baptist Church. An address will be delivered by Dr. Isaac T. Headland of New York.

STEEL WORKERS COMING*Homestead Will Play the Cokers on Saturday Afternoon.

After a fortnight of inactivity, the Cokers Saturday afternoon will meet the Homestead team on Fayette field. Most of the members of the Homestead team are employed in the steel mills and at all times are in the best of physical condition. The games they have played this year have been hard fought battles, the majority of them having been won by the steel workers.

That the visitors will put up a hard battle against the Cokers Saturday afternoon goes without saying. But Manager Silcox's men are imbued with the confidence that permeates a winning team and do not intend to take any chances of losing the week-end contest.

Silcox will probably pitch. He desires to duplicate his early season feat of winning a no-hit game, and the players will stand up behind him in the attempt. The manager of the Steelville team wants a game with the locals here on June 28. Silcox will endeavor to accommodate him.

JOHN B. STRICKLER DIES*Was One of Upper Tyrone's Best Known Citizens.

John B. Strickler, 82 years old, one of the oldest and best known residents of Upper Tyrone township died yesterday at his home at Hickory Square following a lingering illness. Hardening of the arteries was the immediate cause of his death. The funeral will probably take place tomorrow afternoon with interment in Bethel cemetery.

Mr. Strickler was born May 2, 1831. He was a son of John A. and Margaret Bowers Strickler who at their time were among the most prominent residents of Upper Tyrone township. Deceased was a retired farmer and in addition to his widow is survived by two sons, Harry Strickler at home, and Frank Strickler at Broad Ford.

Woman Pays Cost in Case. Mrs. Barbara Romaine was arraigned before Justice of the Peace E. M. Buttermore of the West Side last evening on charges of malicious mischief, made by Mrs. Dorotie Mahanalis. The case ended with the defendant paying the costs. William Roland of Dunbar township was the constable.

TEACHERS ASSIGNED TO GRADES FOR THE NEXT SCHOOL TERM*Superintendent Ashe Announces Where They Will Teach.*SEVERAL CHANGES ARE MADE*Eighth Grades Will be Centered in the Fourth-Ward Building; One Room to be Sent to West Side and Two are Expected to Go to the South Side.

Announcement was made by Superintendent S. P. Ashe this morning of the assignments of teachers for the coming school year. While virtually all of the teachers will teach in the same grades they taught last year, a few have been changed in the placing of the new instructors.

The property committee has not yet made the changes in rooms that will be necessary for next year, but they will likely send three rooms from the Fourth ward to other buildings, two of which will go to the South Side and one to the Fourth street building, West Side.

A new room is to be provided in the Second ward building by the sending of grade six to the Fourth ward building. One in the Third ward will be provided for by a like change.

It is the intention to transfer the eighth grade from the West Side to the Fourth ward building. This in the Fourth ward building, property committee, will accomplish the desired end with the fewest number of pupils being inconvenienced by going out of their wards to attend school.

The rooms that will probably be affected by the change include grades 1 and 2 in the South Side ward, taught by Virginia Herbert and Luella Ogilvie respectively; grade 3 in the Third ward, taught by Miss Ida Stillwagon; and 4 in the South Side ward, taught by Miss Katherine Francis, and grade 5, of the West Side.

The announced assignments for the teaching corps follow: High school, Bela B. Smith, principal; W. H. Sawright, English; Harry Weaver, science; Stewart Griffin, science; Charles D. Baer, mathematics; Mary E. Pier, Latin; Jennie B. Wenner, German; Jeannine Deffenbary, history; "Mabel Slout, English; Lila Chanley, commercial; Helen Carroll, commercial; Frances Freed, German and history; Jean Armstrong, English and Latin; Marie Kontny, Latin and English; Marie Manch, Domestic Science; W. O. Stone, manual training; Mary Brinkman, supervisor of drawing; Camilla Munk, secretary.

South Side building, grade 1, Jessie Harris; grade 1, Lillian Edmonds; grade 2, Mary Parkhill; grade 3B, Mary Thomas; grade 3A, Beatrice Fackler; grade 4, Winnie Harrison; grade 5, Ruth Baer; grade 6, Belle Dowden; grade 7, Mr. Miner.

Fourth ward building, grade 1, Iretia Lundberg; grade 1, Sara Morland; grade 2, Ruth Davidson; grade 3, Freda Rhodes; grade 5, Virginia Herbert; grade 6, Luella Ogilvie; grade 8, Mabel Golden; grade 9, Anna Hornet; grade 10, Grace Adams, Daise Trump, F. W. Black, Beulah Gilmore.

Third ward building, grade 1, Frances Cameron; grade 2, Naomi Rosenblum; grade 2A, Mae Thayer; grade 3, Sadie R. Hays; grade 3B, Edna; grade 4, Mildred Hinkle; grade 4, Anna Hornet; grade 5, Hattie Henry; grade 6, Ida Stillwagon; grade 7, I. K. Miller.

Second ward building, grade 1, Pearl Sandless; grade 1A, Vileta Hayward; grade 2, Florence Cuynder; grade 2A, Edna Weber; grade 3, Martha James; grade 3A, Anna Daffey; grade 5, Edith Moxton; grade 6, Katharine Francis; grade 7, S. B. Henry.

Greenwood building, grade 1, Edith Gallagher; grade 2, Agnes O'Donovan; grade 3 and 4, Margaret Jean Berg; grade 5 and 6, Mrs. Wilson.

Seventh street building, grade 1, Roberts Baer; grade 2, Ada Edwards; grade 3, Ivy Mason; grade 4, Myrtle McDielt.

Fourth street building, grade 6, Frances Rhodes; grade 6A, Mae Gilmore; grade 7, Mrs. Yoder; grade 8, Assistant principals: Ethel Buckingham; general substitute, Myrtle Dorst.

Sidewalk coalholes came in for their share of condemnation yesterday afternoon, when Constable Russell E. Stillwagon stepped and fell on one of them in front of the Mountain property on South Pittsburg street. He injured his leg, so badly it was necessary to have the services of a physician.

The iron cover was supposed to be fastened securely to the sidewalk from beneath but when the constable placed his weight on it, the cover turned and he fell partly through the hole. His leg was skinned from the ankle to knee. Chairman W. P. Clark of the street committee notified the agent to have the cover repaired. Several accidents of a similar nature have occurred at other places in town where the round iron cover is located in the center of the sidewalk. For several days one cover on North Pittsburg street has been loose.

Girl Has Appendicitis. Ruth Aiverda, Meigs, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Meigs of Mount Braddock, is ill of appendicitis. She is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Freed of Dunbar township.

UNCOVER SAND BURIED BACK
OF PLANT MANY YEARS AGO*Boys, Porter & Co. First Thought
They Had Found Rich Deposit; Building an Addition.

Employees of the Keystone Lumber Company, excavating the foundation for a large warehouse to be erected for the Boys, Porter & Co. in the rear of their shops on Water street, this morning struck a fine bed of moulding sand. For a time it was thought that it was a valuable bed that could be used by the company in the making of castings, but Andy Erickson, the oldest employee of the firm, who has worked in the shops for half a century, exploded the theory. Erickson remembered that when he first entered the employ of Hartman, Davis & Patterson, founders of the extensive Boys, Porter & Co. in the early days of the firm, a large quantity of moulding sand which was removed to the ground adjoining the shops. It was this sand that had not been used that workmen uncovered this morning, and not an extensive deposit of it.

On account of the increase in their business during the last few years, Boys, Porter & Co. have been inconvenienced by lack of room. With the completion of the new warehouse, hundreds of patterns that have been stored in the shops will be removed to that building, giving additional room in the factory.

The structure will be 100 feet long by 60 feet wide. It will be of steel and brick and will be fireproof. The building will be two stories in height. The contract for the brick work.

The pump company is now in the midst of its most busy season. Among the orders filled recently and others on hand include pumps for the H. C. Erick & Co. Company, Washington Coal Company, Cambridge report company, Bellair, O. J. National Mining Company, Travasky, Pa.; Davis Coal Company, Benthush, W. Va.; W. J. Rainey, Crucible Coal & Coke Company, Sykesville Coal & Coke Company, Erie, Pa.; Erick & Co. Company, Beaver Run Coal Company, Ohio Electric Railroad Company, James Reese & Sons, Pittsburg; Thompson Connellsville Coal Company, Mississippi Glass Company, Morgantown, W. Va.; Latrobe-Connellsville Coal & Coke Company, United States Coal & Coke Company, Gary, Ind.; and the Queening Coal & Coke Company of Somerset.

SUMMER CAMP FAVORED*But There Will be No Baseball Ticker For X. M. C. Club.

Directors of the Y. M. C. A. favor a summer camp for men up the Yough river. At the monthly meeting last night it was approved and it is probable that some of the directors will be among those to spend a few days there.

An account of the expense they decided against installing a baseball ticker in the association rooms this summer. Secretary E. T. Baer was instructed to proceed with the installation of a shooting gallery. The gallery will be ready in short time.

The matter of forming an exchange for the accommodation of Baltimore and Ohio employees desiring to cash checks was held over until another meeting. Those present were S. P. Ashe, E. W. Horner, W. L. Wright, E. B. Norton, E. A. Armstrong, John Curry, Ernest Murrell and Worth Kilpatrick.

THE STORK WINS*Beats the Grim Reaper for 14 in This District During May.

The number of births recorded in Connellsville borough, Connellsville township and Bullskin township exceeded by 14 the number of deaths reported during the month of May.

The report prepared by Secretary A. Baer of the health department showed that 15 deaths occurred in Connellsville against 26 deaths; 6 deaths in Connellsville township against 8 births and 2 deaths in Bullskin township against 3 births.

The radio favors Bullskin township by four deaths over the number of births, that the number of deaths doubled the number of births reported in Connellsville township.

TRAIN SERVICE IMPROVED.*Better Accommodations Given Travelers in Interstate Special of B. & O.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has improved its service between New York and Chicago on the Interstate Special trains. When the Interstate Specials were first placed in operation they were full vestibule cars, but now they are double-deckers, a double-compartment sleeping car, a twin-section and observation car were added.

These are solid steel trains, of the most modern construction throughout, being the most luxurious in operation of the Baltimore & O. between New York and Chicago. The running time has not been changed.

Repair Phone Line.

The lines of the Connellsville and Springhill Telephone Companies have been repaired as far as J. L. Stader's summer home at McCoy Springs. It is expected that the work on the line to Hill Run will be completed within a week.

$1,000 an Acre for Coal Land.

Worth Millions.*MET. PROSPECTOR WITH HOBBY*He Offered to Sell Two-Thirds Interest for $10,000 but They Declined to Accept; Later Pritchard is Discovered and the Miner Gets It All.

An old adage has it that opportunity knocks once at every man's door. Well, when Old Opp rapped at the portals of two Connellsville men they were in, and they have reason to rue it now. A few days ago J. Driscoll, formerly superintendent of the Connellsville division of the Baltimore & Ohio, and P. J. Harrigan, veteran Baltimore & Ohio master mechanic, had the opportunity of securing an interest in the St. Joseph mine, then a prospect, located on the top of Senon mountain, midway between Black Hawk and Idaho Springs, Colorado. They didn't embrace it. Recently pitchblende, oxidized uranium was discovered in large quantities on the claim and the owner, Thomas O'Brien, is a wealthy man.

Uranium, in addition to containing atoms of radium, the most valuable mineral element in the world, is used in hardening steel, weaving cloth, making tungsten lights and many other uses. It is readily sold at $5 a pound, or $10,000 a ton. The owner of the mine is now in Pittsburg, visiting his family, after an absence of 40 years. When he first went west he located on the claim that he named St. Joseph and lived on it continuously until the present trip, exceeding one visit east.

O'Brien had two little daughters and a wife when he left Pittsburg for the west. Since that time both the daughters entered a convent, but the wife, although nearly 80 years old, is still hale and hearty.

It was about four years ago that O'Brien came east for the first time since he located on his claim. He was then seeking gold. His shaft, the result of years of effort, had become filled with water, but a big bore through the mountain had remained it for him, and after five years of idleness he was able to resume prospecting. He believed gold was near at hand.

One of O'Brien's daughters was a sister at St. Xavier's convent. It was there that a daughter of John J. Driscoll heard of the romantic search for gold. It was through her that O'Brien was induced to pay a visit to Connellsville. In talking to Mr. Driscoll and P. J. Harrigan, he offered to dispose of a two-thirds interest in the claim for $10,000.

The railroad men caused an investigation to be made, and although they learned that everything was as O'Brien represented it, those making the reports expressed belief that the prospector had the St. Joseph mine as a hobby, and doubted whether it would prove valuable as a gold producer. Driscoll and Harrigan decided not to accept.

O'Brien struck it rich through tapping the vein of pitchblende, an ore with which he was not familiar; something he did not

West-Cypher.
Miss Anna Elizabeth West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. West of Homestead, and Edgar Cypher, son of Mrs. Martha Cypher of the West Side, were quietly married today in New Castle by Rev. John E. Aligood, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of New Castle and a cousin of the bridegroom. The bride is an active member of the First Presbyterian Church and was graduated from the Homestead High School in 1903 and in domestic science from the C. W. Swab Industrial School. She is well known socially in Homestead and has many friends in Connellsville where she frequently visited Miss Gertrude Cypher, a sister of the bridegroom. Mr. Cypher is a well known business man of the West Side, having been engaged in the plumbing, tinning and heating business for the past 12 years. At the death of his father, James Cypher, he became manager of the firm of Cypher & Sons. He was a former West Side councilman. After an extended Western trip they will be at home at No. 208 North Third street, West Side. The wedding gifts were numerous and beautiful. Mrs. Martha Cypher, mother of the bridegroom, attended the wedding.

Employees on Picnic.
Thirty-two members of the clerical departments of the West Penn spent a most enjoyable evening last night at Oakford Park, as guests of a formal picnic. Vincent E. Barry, assistant treasurer of the Greensburg division, presided over the evening. An excellent orchestra had been procured to furnish music, and the guests danced until the time arrived for their return to the city. On the return trip, a fine luncheon, furnished by Mr. Barry, was enjoyed.

Alumni Dance.

Advice to Housewives.
Housewives are often perplexed as to what to serve to make their meals more enjoyable and tasty. Recent experiments have been shown that good coffee is an excellent addition to a meal. Its soothing and mildly stimulating properties are admirably adapted for the tired worker in the city. For a good beverage, you cannot do better than serve "BREAKEFAST CHIEF" coffee. Refreshing and invigorating it is a drink that all appreciate and enjoy. Rich in flavor and nutritive value "BREAKEFAST CHIEF" coffee is something you should add to your household supplies without delay. Excellent for breakfast or after dinner. Secure a supply from your grocer at once.—Adv.

Do You Need Assistance

IN THE SELECTION OF YOUR WALL PAPER?

There is a logical sequence governed largely by the existing conditions in your home which if followed will produce correct results. Each room should be treated so as to give it correct form and proportions.

Then there is the question of color and design which must suit the individualities of each room as well as harmonize with the adjoining rooms. Especially is this true of parlors, dining room and reception hall or any group of rooms when considered collectively.

I can render you valuable assistance in the selection of your Wall Papers.

Woman's World

Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer Fairy Godmother to "Newsies."

MRS. RALPH PULITZER.

Mrs. Ralph Pulitzer, wife of the editor of the New York World, is playing the part of fairy godmother to the newsboys of the metropolis.

Mrs. Pulitzer, who is a daughter of Dr. Edward Webb and a granddaughter of the late William H. Vanderbilt, is the originator of a scheme for the social betterment of the "newsies."

She is chairman of a committee to raise funds for the erection of a clubhouse for the little waifs who earn their living by selling papers in the streets.

Mrs. Pulitzer proposes to give these youngsters a common home where they can get the right kind of enjoyment out of life, and she hopes similar movements will be taken up in other cities.

Entertainers at Summer Resort.

Any girl who is talented as a singer, piano player, fancy dancer or elocutionist can earn considerable money by applying early in the spring to proprietors of the large summer hotels to be engaged to entertain their guests.

One elocutionist who teaches a dramatic school in the winter spends her vacations profitably in this way at a different summer resort each year. She has her choice of a room and board at the hotel in exchange for her services or of receiving a salary and rooming and boarding elsewhere.

As she is a dainty refined, fascinating, and well educated little woman, she makes many friends each summer among the wealthy guests and returns to her classes each autumn greatly benefited in health, besides being richer in friends.

It proves also a good advertisement for her, as she generally adds more scholars to her classes each year in consequence.

The Futurist Fan.

A new place has been found for the distinctive bunch of futurist flowers. They have been used at the coronation of the king of the beach and on the neck of the king of the beach.

Behold them now fastened securely to net, lace or ivory fan. They are effective, too, the gaudy stuff flowers against the dainty white fan. They are generally caught about the stems to the outside stick of the fan, and one of the flowers is fastened securely in place farther along the stick. Arranged in this manner they do not interfere with the opening and shutting of the fan.

The woman who can use a paint brush can make the most of a different fan by decorating a net of white fan with spots and blotches of brilliant color—coral, orange, purple and bright green—in oil paints.

ECZEMA IN BIG BLOTCHES ON NECK

Itched So Kept Her Awake Scratching. All Inflamed. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Worked Wonders. Cured and Never Left Any Marks.

2352 West Franklin St., Philadelphia, Pa.—"I got big blotches all over my neck, and it itched so that it used to keep me awake at night scratching, and when it would get all inflamed, I would scratch till the blood would run. People told me that I had eczema. One night I read of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper, and thought I would try them. They worked wonders, as they took that itching away, and healed the blotches up. I would wash my neck with warm water and Cuticura Soap, and then put the Cuticura Ointment on. They cured me in a couple of months, and never left any marks. I have not been bothered with them since." (Signed) Mrs. Rose Ibe, Nov. 22, 1911.

Obstinate Case of Tetter

Amber, Pa.—"I suffered from an obstinate case of tetter on my face. My face became inflamed from cheekbones to chin, and the itching, burning, sensation was intense, indescribable. After using about six cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, my face was soft as velvet, skin free from every trace of tetter, no itching nor burning. It is nothing short of marvelous the way Cuticura cures." (Signed) Miss Matilda L. Gallagher, November 16, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

42-Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 20c. Sample free.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, JUNE 11, 1913

AN APOLOGY.

We feel that we should apologize to our readers for taking up their space to reply to the following from the Connelville News:

The early closing movement is "in line with the progress of the times," says The Courier. So, also, is it in line with the "progress of the times" to observe the five principal holidays of the year, and extend vacations with pay to certain employees during the summer. We have yet to learn of our esteemed contemporary failing over itself to get in line with the "progress of the times" in any of these respects.

The custom in respect to these matters is the same in both newspaper offices in Connelville, so that if The Courier is not "in line with the progress of the times," The News is in no position to criticize. Adverting to the Municipal League movement and the attitude of The Courier toward it, The News becomes personal and abusive in its intemperance. The editor of this paper uses "disrespectful and contemptible methods." This had also been better unsaid. Whatever fighting The Courier or its editor do is done openly and publicly. This office is not bawling with political ambitions. Here are no secret caucuses, no pup trust conferences, no grinding of axes, no orders.

Concluding a string of silly and stupid abuse, The News says The Courier is evil in all things and a persistent supporter of corrupt political organizations. These remarks are also particularly ill-timed and unwise. Evidently, the proprietors of the Connelville News ought to add to its office equipment by investing in a muzzle.

The status of the East Park viaduct is to be established by legal proceedings. Perhaps it is, just as well, but as a matter of equity it should not be necessary. The county builds and keeps in repair all other bridges. It is as little as it could do to keep one in repair that has been provided free of cost. East Park was taken into Connelville under a fair agreement and that agreement should be kept in spirit and in letter. The Connelville authorities should take care of the streets and sewers of East Park and the county should take over and keep up the viaduct.

Balkan politics and Balkan patterns continue in fashion.

The Connelville Italian who attempted suicide because he failed in business has not informed himself fully of American customs.

T. H. says the bosses must go. Why does he linger?

The Besenstown Bugle blew itself again this morning. About once a week it prints a few editorial paragraphs clothed in its own choice flowery language and redolent with the odors of Bohemian goat-pastures. It takes a week to think up things they are always interesting if not always elevating.

It is not too early to discuss ways and means for insuring a safe and sane Fourth in Connelville.

The Legislature promises to adjourn June 26. Now if Congress would only agree to give the country a rest all might yet be well, in spite of the frosty weather, the hoodoo year and the Bull-Democrats.

It is astonishing the number of people who believe in the Referendum as a means of regulating everybody but themselves.

The township road supervisors are reminded of the fact that they are required to remove or cause to be removed the loose stones on the traveled highways in their districts at least once a month during May, June, August and October, under penalty of fine.

A Progressive Harrisburg statesman wants to organize a lobby hunt.

The decision of the Supreme Court of the United States that one coal shipper cannot sue and recover rebates because they had been given to another shipper does not at first glance seem equitable, but it must be remembered that the giving of rebates is illegal, and that one wrong cannot be righted by another wrong. The proper way to do justice in such cases is to compel the rebates to make restitution.

The United States Supreme Court broadly hints that railroad cases should be tried before the railroad tribunals before being imposed on the civil courts. Some of the railroad complications are puzzling even to the crystal mind of the court of final resort.

The Japanese troubles will try the diplomatic ability of Ambassador Guthrie. He should get busy on the job of he can spare the time from Pennsylvania politics.

Branch of promise of marriage is no longer a joke; it's a cinch for the lawyer and a pinch for the defendant.

The Kodak Trust is now in the limelight and the Trust Busters are trying to make a moving picture out of it.

The explosive lamp is pretty nearly out of date, but those still in use are just as dangerous as ever.

The United States Supreme Court has dispelled the illusion that the state railroad tribunals have nothing to say concerning the regulation of railroads. It's the railroads that have nothing to say.

This is beginning to look like the year of the Democratic frost.

The Bull-Democratic Inquisition in the private affairs of newspaper publishers has been declared lawful by the Supreme Court of the United States, and those newspapers which have been coy about confessing to their circulation, ownership and finances will have to lift the lid.

The Young Men's Christian Association has a modern and alert business management. It is proposed to take up the association's indebtedness with a popular bond issue. Here's an idea for the promoters of the Municipal League, who seem to be at a loss how to finance it.

"A lobbyist," said Senator Lusk to the probing committee charged with the duty of pinning down President Wilson's head against the Indolent Lobby. "Is generally a man who is opposed to your view of legislation; when he agrees with your interests he is an expert." This senator has evidently never slept on his job.

To the militia officers Gettysburg is a camp of instruction; to the veterans it is a memory of bloody practice.

The proposition advanced in a New York town to submit the question of Sunday baseball to a popular vote has caused many of the most enthusiastic advocates of the Referendum to pause. This practical application of their theory to a proposition which will appeal to the weak as well as the wicked suggests the unwelcome thought that there are many other questions which they might consider inadvisable to submit to the operation of the Referendum.

The vast and complex problem of currency reform is primarily in the hands of a Virginia editor. He must be an exceptional editor if he is strong on financial wisdom.

We are still firmly of the opinion that the Barefoot Boys are unbeatable.

Pennsylvania's death rate is being kept down in spite of steam and electric power, and the fact that the green grass just now that she probably won't mind being talked about.

The Fayette county farmers will at their coming meeting discuss the cow. The cow is so busy with the financial green grass just now that she probably won't mind being talked about.

Alaska is reported as being in full blast, producing a large surplus of volcanic ashes.

The Grim Reaper is cutting a wide swath in Connelville.

The Election Bills.

Johnstown Leader.

One of the interesting exhibits of the present moment in the squaring of the political reformers of the Pennsylvania Washington party when it is proposed at Harrisburg to incorporate in the election laws a little real reform, with a view of enforcing honor and political decency among folks who are not willing to practice those virtues voluntarily.

One of the best of these measures promising real reform was passed by the senate with much opposition on the part of the Filmm outfit that it had a bare constitutional majority. It is the bill which is intended to compel the voter to remain on his own side of the political fence, to the primaries and to prevent him from helping to influence the nominations of other parties. In the past it has been possible, in a strong Republican district, for example, for enough members of that party to ask for Democratic ballots to control the nomination of the opposition. Hereafter, if the present bill becomes a law, when a man is registered he will give his political allegiance, and at the primary he must accept the ballot of that party only. This will enforce a square line-up and an honest deal at the primaries. It is not relished by the Filmm followers, who last year secured control of the Republican convention at the primaries, then organized the Washington party and then lost the election of a double ticket for such persons as they favored. They had hoped to pull off something of the kind this year again, but the enrollment measure will prevent it.

Another provision to which the Filmm people object and for a reason equally plain is that which forbids a candidate from having his name on more than one ballot. This is very clearly in the interest of honest politics, for it removes the temptation for deals and trades between political bosses and manipulators. Such a step has long ago been taken by nearly all the Progressive states of the West, and it might be supposed that the Washingtonians of Pennsylvania would favor it. But not so. Knowing very well their inability to accomplish anything weaker, they had hoped by playing a dog-in-the-manger policy to force either the regular Republicans or the Democrats to make bargains with them by which they would receive something in return for places on their ticket. They were ready to deal with anybody who would deal with them. But the bill which will compel them to fight squarely, and in the open will prevent them from dealing with anybody and make them stand upon their own feet.

Another excellent reform movement which is meeting with the hearty opposition of the Filmm element is that which allows the introduction of candidates into a contest at the last moment by nomination papers. In the days when nominations were made by conventions, and it might be said that political bosses and not the people named the candidates, there was, perhaps some excuse for that arrangement. But now that the voters themselves are to nominate all candidates at the primaries, there is none whatever. The man who takes part in a primary assumes a moral obligation to abide by the result of that selection—in some counties of the state it has been a practice to require a candidate to give a written pledge that he will do so. While this proposed law will not compel him to support the candidate nominated at the primaries, it will prevent him from taking up a sorehead ticket by nomination papers whose only effect can be to defeat the choice of the party at the primary polls.

Oklahoma City.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Slawash."

Twenty-five years ago Oklahoma City consisted of a cluster of prairie dog holes and a horizon that stretched over an unfenced prairie. Thirty years ago Oklahoma City had 10,000 inhabitants and together thousands on the waiting list—waiting for a room at the hotel.

Three years ago Oklahoma City had 65,000 citizens, was the metropolis of 500 square miles of U. S. territory, had just swiped the state capital from Guthrie and a packing house from Kansas City, was completing a skyline varying from 5 to 14 stories in height and had broken all U. S. percentage records, but one, for annexing citizens.

Oklahoma City increased 550 percent in 10 years. Milwaukee beat this once. But that was long ago.

Oklahoma City was founded and became a flourishing community one afternoon in April, 1890. In the morning it didn't pan out two citizens per square mile. Then Uncle Sam let down the bars on the borders of Oklahoma and that night the city had 4,000 citizens. It has been growing ever since. It has natural gas and hot air in inexhaustible supply, interurban, a college for two and all the comforts of a real metropolis. It has no slum district because none of its buildings have existed long enough to become rickety. It has an old settlers' association composed of all citizens who were in town yesterday and a newcomer has to take off his hat and wait before he is considered an old resident and in good standing in the community. Oklahoma City has pretty young girls who remember it when there wasn't a two story building in the town, and beardless boys, who once fought tame Indians where the government building now stands. Oklahoma City gets what it goes after. It went after the state capital and brought it home in an automobile between two days; and it went after a packing house and raised enough money to get it before Dallas had finished rubbing its eyes.

"It didn't pan out two citizens per square mile."

Oklahoma City has no history to speak of and it isn't worth writing because everybody can remember it. But she began in city building where most cities have to leave off, and she is the greatest exhibit today of the American habit of planting a metropolis on a burdock patch between censuses.

"The Old Order Changeth."

This is an oft-quoted phrase, but nowhere is it more truly applicable than in regard to advertising. We need not be so very old to remember the day when we eyed all advertisements and advertisers with suspicion. The advertisements were regarded as traps to catch the unwary and the advertisers as "quacks" or "fakers."

Not so many years ago a woman picked up a newspaper and exclaimed: "Just listen to this: 'Blank & Blank desire to call the attention of their patrons to their Fall importations of suits and wraps.' I never saw Blank & Blank advertise before. I wonder if they are going to get cheap!"

A few weeks ago the same woman said to a friend: "I had been hunting all over for that Oriental embroidery and had given up finding it when I just happened upon the very thing I wanted at Blank & Blank's. I told the man it was a pity they had not advertised it and saved me tramping all over the city."

This is a true story. The same woman, the same shop, nothing changed but the time and the point of view.

Women today feel aggrieved if the dealers do not keep them informed of their stock through the medium of the good newspapers.

When more women wear the "Queen Quality" Shoe than any other shoe in the world, the question to ask yourself is, why should you not wear it? You will know complete satisfaction when you do. Try a pair.

PIG IRON FURNACES SET STRANGE MARKS FOR OUTPUT IN MAY

Production Greatest in Single Month, With Many Stacks Out.

WORST SLUMP IN TWO YEARS

Twelve Stacks Idle During the Month Yet Production Exceeds 2,800,000 Tons for the First Time in History; Merchant Furnaces Gain However.

Returns giving the production of coke and anthracite pig iron in May show two directly opposed records were broken last month, says the Iron Trade Review. The output exceeded 2,800,000 tons for the first time in history, while the number of stacks blowing out was the largest in two years.

The output last month was 2,815,326 tons, compared with 2,754,365 tons in April, a short month, a gain of 60,961 tons. January of this year was the previous record-holding month with 2,747,900 tons.

The number of active stacks on May 31 was 235, against 237 on the last day of April, a loss of 2. Exactly two years ago, May 1911, showed a loss in active furnaces of 14, while since June 1911, there has been a constant gain in the number of stacks in blast with two minor exceptions, exclusive of the flood period of two months ago.

The average daily production showed a low last month of 92,517 tons and for April, 91,512 tons. The record average daily production was set in February, 1913, at 92,517 tons.

The merchant furnaces made the principal gain last month, the average daily production of merchant iron being 25,515 tons in May, compared with 25,426 tons in April, a gain of 89 tons. The average daily output of the electric or non-merchant furnaces was 64,597 tons in May, and 65,519 tons in April, a loss last month of 922 tons.

In total, the merchant furnaces produced 749,275 tons in May, compared with 737,770 tons in April, a gain of 28,505 tons. The steel works or non-merchant stacks produced 2,066,051 tons, against 1,985,475 tons in April, a gain of 38,576 tons. The merchant output was below the record set in March, 1913, with 291,932 tons, while the steel works exceeded their best previous record, established in December, 1912, at 2,000,882 tons.

Eight merchant stacks were blown out last month and one relighted, a net loss of seven. Seven non-merchant furnaces were blown out and two relighted, a net loss of five. In all, 15 were blown out and 3 blown in.

The output of spiegel in May was 16,674 tons, against 9,256 tons in April, a gain of 1,418 tons. The production of ferro in May was 11,193 tons, compared with 16,752 tons in April, a loss of 5,559 tons.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

MT. PLEASANT, June 11.—At a special meeting of the school board held last evening the contract for school supplies was awarded to J. R. Wiggins & Company of Pittsburgh for $523. H. L. Kuntzman of Tower City, Pa., was elected commercial teacher in the high school at $30 a month to fill the place of C. A. Bricker. Foster E. Barr of State College, teacher of manual training, was present and discussed equipment and plans for his department. The tax levy for next year was placed at 10 mills, the same as last year. The levy for general purposes and 2 1/2 mills for interest and redemption of bonds. D. C. Rumbaugh, tax collector, was presented his list of exonerations for 1913 duplicate, which were granted.

Mrs. John Bowman gave a farewell party for her sister, Ruth McElwain, who will leave in a few days for her home near Harrisburg. The color scheme was green and white. The guests present were Eleanor Goldsmith, Elizabeth Overholt, Ada Bunsford, Mary Schaub, Dorothy Weaver of this place and Lenora Rankin of Leesville. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. May Gelathorpe entertained her fellow-members of the Alpha Bible class at her College avenue home. The refreshments were served in the dining room. The centerpiece was a large bowl of roses. Each guest was given a rose as a favor and upon lifting the rose found a card attached announcing the commencement of Miss Nellie Hawkins, daughter of Mr. J. C. Hawkins of East Washington street to Edwin Allison of Greensburg. The wedding will be a September affair.

The fortieth annual commencement exercises of the Western Classical and Scientific Institute were held last evening in the Grand Opera House. On the class roll was Michael Gaze, Elizabeth, Ramsey, Olma Harmon, Anna Rumbaugh, Eunice Nedrow, Edna Shallenberger and Mabelle Sherriek. The following program was read out: Concert in D Major (first movement), Mozart, Edna Shallenberger; "These are They Which Came" (from The Holy City), Gail, Mabelle Sherriek; Gounod's "Etude de Concert" (first), Anna Rumbaugh; "Edna Harmon—God's Crucible, Michael Gaze; "Dost Thou Know That Fair Land," (from Opera Mignon) Thomas Eunice Nedrow; Concert Etude in D Flat, Liszt, Olma Harmon. In his oration Mr. Gaze presented America as the melting pot of all nations and suggested that by the proper methods good, honest, upright citizens could be made of immigrants. Before presenting the medals, Professor Hanks gave the class motto, "Die," at this one he was sure they would never forget. The Porter College prize went to Michael Gaze and the honor medals went to Edna Shallenberger, Anna Rumbaugh and Olma Harmon, all of these persons having an average of over 90 during the year. This was followed by the presentation of diplomas. The stage was beautifully decorated in blue and white, the class colors, and with potted plants. Miss Elizabeth Ramsey, who is ill of typhoid fever, was not present.

Miss Helen Hahn has returned to her Connelville home after a visit paid Miss Ruth Walker.

Dr. F. L. Marsh left yesterday to attend the annual meeting of Baltimore & Ohio railroad medical men at Pittsburgh. Mrs. Marsh and daughter, Miss Leona, will join him this morning and this evening they will come back to Greensburg, where Miss Marsh will give a recital.

Mrs. W. B. Parker left yesterday for her Somerset home after a visit paid her sister, Mrs. William C. Murphy. Mrs. Elmer Berger left yesterday for Pittsburgh to visit her sister, Mrs. Harry Van Estenbridge.

C. F. McKinney of Altoona was a caller here yesterday.

Mrs. W. E. Travis of Brinkerton was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hostettler.

W. W. Lowther, H. G. Brown, C. A. Sherrick, L. E. Gibbs, J. B. Zundell, C. L. Gennett and Elmer Aueband are the committee of Elks who have charge of the June reception to be held in the Bank & Trust assembly rooms on Thursday evening.

THE MAN IN THE ORIENT.

He Walks Ahead of His Wife to Guard Her From Danger.

When husband and wife go traveling together in the orient the man walks in front, careless and free, and the woman walks behind, carrying the bundle. Therefore you say: "The oriental cares not for his women. He despises his wife and sees her as a burden." Most occidentals never get further than that. But if you are observant you go out in the jungle yourself, and you discover things. When you walk ahead there are difficulties and dangers. The paths are overgrown and thorny, crocodiles must be driven off, and buffaloes are ugly creatures.

In the villages are village dogs which snarl and snap. You are a man, yet you will be glad of some one to go in front of you with a hatchet to clear your way. No woman would walk in front, and the man must be free. Now you see the reason why the man walks in front. If you want to confirm it you inquire and find that this is true. Thus the Japanese, the Burman, goes in front of his wife for the same reason that the occidental goes behind—from courtesy. If he continues to do so when it is unnecessary, as in towns where there are roads, it is because a convention once formed is hard to break, east or west.—H. Fielding-Hall in Atlantic Monthly.

A DOG IN A GALE.

Able to Keep His Feet Where a Man Would Be Blown Away.

A gale that blows a man off his feet does not bother a dog at all. He will run about unconcernedly while his master walks with the greatest difficulty. This is for the same reason that a high building is more affected than a low one by a gale. It is also because the dog has four legs to support his body, while a man has only two.

With topsails set a yacht would capsize in a gale which it would ride out with safety if only its lower sails were set, for the leverage exerted by the wind increases in proportion to the height at which the sails are set. A man by reason of his height receives far more force from the wind than does a dog.

Thus, then, a dog's center of gravity is much lower in proportion to his height than is a man's; consequently he is not nearly so tipsy. And it is obvious that any object supported on four legs is more stable than if supported on two.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

It Was His.

A small boy was telling his mother of a mishap which had occurred to a playmate of his. The youngster, it appeared, had been regaling himself with one of those large, marblelike candies which are a particular delight of childhood, and in a moment of excitement it slipped down and stuck in his throat. But, said the narrator, they succeeded in relieving him.

"Oh," said his mother, "you got it out, did you?"

Miners' Strike Inquiry and Anti-Trust

Prosecution of Officials Make Big Stir.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 11.—

Keen interest was focused upon this city because of the indictment in the federal district court of John P. White, president, and 18 other officials of the United Mine Workers of America and because of the Senate inquiry into the conditions in the soft coal fields of this state. The Senate investigation, which was scheduled to begin June 10, was for the moment overshadowed in general interest by the action against the miners' officials. It was charged that White and the others conspired to restrict trade by their unionizing tactics in the Paint and Cabin Creek districts in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. It was stated at Washington that

United States Attorney General Mc-

Raynolds did not know that the action was being brought, but after the indictments had been made public attention was at once directed to the stand the administration would take on the matter.

The fact that it was the first criminal or civil action against a labor organization to be brought in a federal court under the Wilson administration was seized upon as a possible indication of the policy of the President toward prosecuting these organizations on allegations that they had operated in restraint of trade. It became apparent that the presentment of the mine workers' officials resulted from action

TRAVEL AS AN EDUCATION.

It Depends Not Only on What You See, but How You See It.

Travel is an education, but there may be need of compulsion to make it take. A man who spent much time in a foreign country says that he has learned more about it by reading than he ever did by seeing. In many instances the sole gain of the traveler is recreation. Nothing is carried away but surface impressions. The often noticed contest among tourists over the fundamental questions, "Did you go here?" or "Did you go there?" hints at the sum total of knowledge that was gained. An intelligent reader would pass a better examination even on the superficial aspects of foreign lands than many of the great family of trotters.

This is not to say that the traveler must go about with a mind so serious as to be oppressive, but if he is to benefit much by his journeyings he must be alert and inquisitive and give his memory some exercise. He must have purpose enough to try to add to his stock of valuable knowledge, and he must be able to understand the significance of things and to make intelligent comparisons. Otherwise it makes little difference whether he travels all over Europe or walks around the block where he lives. More moving about never educated any one. On the other hand, it is possible to get a very large fund both of pleasure and profit out of good books concerning strange places.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Exercise and Health.

There was a bank clerk who saw the men of his own age losing health year by year through overwork, indoor sedentary life and lack of daily exercise. He saw them growing yellow and flabby and unfit and the spectacle didn't attract him. He decided that success had better come late or even not at all rather than at the price of a ruined body. Health became to him the chiefest of the mercies, the best of the comrades. Up and away the person in health can dash to another job, to another climate, master of his fate. All health is a chain that ties to the greenness of what is nearest at hand. After a youth of weakness and fatigue the man was happy in finding that an hour of exercise a day changed the aspect of the outer world and removed him for all time from the ranks of the unfit.—Collins.

A Good Student.

"Is your boy a good student?" "Yes," replied Mr. Wealthy. "To a certain extent he is. The way he gets his mother and me to put up with his expense accounts shows that he is a wonderful student of human nature."—Cleveland Leader.

Cookery Points

Cherry Shortcake.

For cherry shortcake make a soft dough by mixing together two cupsful of flour sifted with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder, a teaspoonful of salt and half a cupful of shortening, which may be half each of butter and lard or bacon fat. Add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and mix with a well beaten egg. Add enough milk to make the dough of the right consistency. Roll out in two layers and bake in the same pan with flacks of butter between.

When baked the two layers will separate easily. The cherry filling should be in readiness to spread between the shortcake and on top. Large ripe cherries are pitted and crushed slightly in a bowl with sugar. Taste the juice to tell if it is sweet enough. Prepare the cherries some time ahead and you will find them much nicer. Serve with or without whipped cream.

Frozen Fruits.

Combination of fruit flavors will often bring about cooling and delicious results. Peaches and plums combine perfectly and frozen in a sugar syrup yield a most delightful sweet. Boil one quart of water with one pound of sugar until they form a rich syrup, then strain and stand aside until cold. Pare twelve fine ripe peaches and chop fine with a silver knife. Scald one pint of plums, remove the skins and the stones, mash the pulp and add to the syrup. Let it stand for thirty minutes and then freeze.

Gold and Silver Omelet.

Have ready as many eggs as there are people to be served. Separate the yolks from the whites and beat each thoroughly, then add to each a dash of salt and pepper or paprika and a little milk. Pour both egg mixtures simultaneously into the pan, letting the white omelet cover one-half of the bottom and the gold omelet the other half. Cook them gently until firm throughout, taking care that they do not burn. Then fold the white or silver one over on to the other and serve immediately.

Scuffed Glace.

Beat a pint of cream, one tablespoonful of grated lemon rind, four eggs, half a pound of sugar, half a gill of wine, one tablespoonful of lemon juice and a pinch of salt. Mix the yolks of the eggs, lemon juice, lemon rind, sugar and salt. Stir over a slow fire until thick. Cool. Add the whites of eggs, well beaten, and the cream, beaten until stiff. Add the wine, all the mixture into paper cases, pack in a pan and pack the pan in ice and salt for four hours.

Burnt Almond Ice Cream.

Blanch and chop half a pint of almonds. Cook four tablespoonfuls of sugar to the caramel; add the chopped almonds. When cold pound to a powder. Put one pint of milk into a saucepan with half a pound of sugar and the yolks of four eggs. Stir over a slow fire until it coats the spoon; then strain and cool. Add one pint of whipped cream, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of almond extract and the powdered almonds. Freeze.

SENATE PROBE TO GO DEEPLY IN COAL STRIKE IN WEST VIRGINIA

Committee Will Investigate Question of Infringement of Constitutional Rights. Conditions at Paint Creek Collieries Will Be Thoroughly Aired.

ATTRACTION capturing the attention of the country for nearly a year, the industrial situation in the bituminous coal region of West Virginia is at last to undergo a thorough investigation. A committee of the United States senate has begun its hearings at Charleston, W. Va., with full powers to conduct a searching probe into the conditions that exist there, with special reference to the recent labor disturbances in the Paint Creek collieries.

What this committee will learn is, of course, still problematical. For months past charges and countercharges have been flying broadcast by miners and mine owners alike, and now for the first time since the beginning of the strike there is a probability that the real facts will be brought out. Whatever the final result of the investigation may be, it is certain that the whole matter will be given a thorough airing and that steps will be taken to correct such abuses as have existed or now exist.

The committee, which is a subcommittee of the senate committee on education and labor, was appointed upon a resolution of Senator Kern of Indiana and is composed of Senator Symington of Virginia, chairman, and Senators Borah, Shields, Martine and Kenyon.

The resolution which created the committee and ordered the investigation

Now urges that special attention be given to the following points:

- First.—Whether or not passage exists or has existed in the coal fields.
- Second.—Whether or not the postal facilities have been interfered with and, if so, by whom?
- Third.—Whether or not the immigration laws have been violated and whether or not there has been discrimination against the district in the administration of these laws.
- Fourth.—To investigate and report all facts and circumstances relating to the charge that citizens of the United States have been arrested, tried and convicted contrary to or in violation of the laws of the United States.
- Fifth.—To investigate commercial conditions with a view to discovering possible infractions of the Sherman anti-trust law.
- Sixth.—To investigate and report whether or not firearms have been imported into the district for the purpose of excluding the products of said coal fields from competitive markets.
- Seventh.—To investigate the cause leading up to the alleged conditions.
- Eighth.—To investigate the provision for, under it the question whether a citizen may be arrested, tried and convicted by the military authorities when the civil courts are open will be decided. This, it is declared, is the most serious offense against the constitutional rights of a citizen which has been an outgrowth of the strike in the coalfields.

The Miners' Side. In an article in the current issue of the Metropolitan Magazine Allan L. Benson graphically sets forth the miners' side of the situation. He outlines the causes that led up to the strike and lays stress on the fact that the miners have never had any rights which the operators were bound to respect. After describing the insanitary and unsanitary conditions in which the miners were forced to live (for which they paid from $6 to $12 monthly to the companies) Mr. Benson tells about the so-called "plunk me" stores, where the miners were compelled to buy all their supplies at exorbitant prices. These are all owned by the companies, and as the companies own all the land they will permit none but themselves to engage in the business of selling merchandise. The result of this system, as Mr. Benson points out, is that the miner is always more or less in debt. As there are no police in the district the companies employ armed guards to do what policemen do, as well as to quote Mr. Benson—"to do what no policeman fit to be outside the penitentiary would think of doing." These guards (who are known as "Baldwin" guards from the name of the detective agency that employs them) are valuable to the companies in many ways. Principally, declares Mr. Benson, they are used for the purposes of intimidation, and he does not hesitate to lay many dark crimes, even murder, at their door.

But it was the matter of weighing the coal, upon which the miners' slender earnings were based, that ultimately led to the strike. Under the state law miners are entitled to have a check weighman, who is supposed to verify the companies' figures. But for a miner to ask for one in the West Virginia coal district meant a probable "beating up" by the "Baldwin" guards, demoralized and blacklisting of the miner by other companies.

How It Began.

In telling about this phase of the situation and the beginning of the strike Mr. Benson says: "The matter of check weighman has long been a sore spot with the miners. The state law declares that if miners demand a check weighman the company for which they work must consent to the installation of such a man. But it has been worth a miner's job to make such a request, so there have been no check weighmen in the Kanawha district. Meanwhile the miners knew they were being compelled to mine as much as two and a half tons of coal in order to get pay for one. The companies never weighed a pound of coal as it came from the mines—everything was measured by the car. But the solemn fact was that the cars that were said to hold a ton and a half held two tons and a half, and the cars that were said to hold two tons held three tons and a half. Miners could see, of course, and did see, but it did no good to see. If they complained they were beaten up or discharged and blacklisted.

"The wrongs that I have so briefly and inadequately described resulted in a strike on April 19, 1912. In Paint Creek one of the few companies whose employees had been organized by the United Mine Workers of America had a misunderstanding with its men. The men contended that the company refused to sign the union scale for another year. The company contended that the men had broken their agreement. The facts seem to be that the company tried of paying union wages and resolved to go back to nonunion conditions. At any rate, the miners struck.

War Upon Women.

"The breaking out of the strike was speedily followed by extraordinary activity upon the part of the 'Baldwin' guards. These gentlemen, armed to the teeth themselves, invaded the homes of strikers to search for firearms. When the wives of the miners objected, as they often did, to the ransacking of their houses, they were beaten up. They were not only beaten up, they were cursed and reviled. Hundreds of such assaults occurred."

Mr. Benson goes on to give a number of specific instances of the brutality of these guards and continues:

"Violence on the part of the mining companies made the mine owners fear violence upon the part of the miners. From the very first the mine owners feared violence. Early in the struggle they caused their armed thugs to search the persons and houses of miners for firearms. Nor would this fear down. So Governor Glasscock was persuaded to send troops into the district and put the Kanawha region under martial law. At first, the miners welcomed the troops as protection against the murderous guards. The troops justified expectations only to the extent of disarming the guards. To make the performance seem impartial, the troops also disarmed the miners. But the guards found means of arming themselves as frequently as they were disarmed. Somebody continued to furnish them with guns. Perhaps not all of the guards were furnished with more guns. All of the guards were a little more careful to keep their weapons under cover. But that many continued to be armed was shown by the wanton murders that occurred during the following winter."

Strike Breakers Brought.

Later the companies brought strike breakers, obtaining them upon any pretense, that proved sufficiently plausible, says Mr. Benson, and these strike breakers, some 2,000 in number, soon were in worse case than the miners themselves. Neither these men nor the numerous other means that the companies resorted to served to intimidate the strikers, however, or frighten them back to work.

In concluding his article Mr. Benson tells of the arrest of "Mother" Jones and other labor agitators and also of the habeas corpus proceedings later brought before the supreme court of appeals of West Virginia. He criticizes sharply the decision of this court, from which Justice Robinson strongly dissented and which held that the governor was acting within his constitutional rights in arbitrarily declaring martial law and thus depriving citizens of their constitutional rights, including the right to be tried by a jury of their peers. Justice Robinson took the ground that the court was wrong and the prisoners right.

Since that time "Mother" Jones and the others have been freed, solely by reason of the force of public opinion, but the coal fields still remain under martial law. Governor Hatfield, who succeeded Governor Glasscock, has refused to recall the troops up to now in the face of insistent demands, but with the opening of the senate investigation in Charleston, W. Va., it is probable that the authorities will do something to relieve the situation.

The Wide, Wide World.

"It's awful how easy some folks get weighted down with a new experience," began the postmaster of Woburn, in the Hills, with a significant glance at "Boosey." Frazer's bowed form in the Concord wagon at the door. "That's what bent him over like that. Yes," after a glance of interrogation from the only listener who was really listening. "He began to bow over soon as he realized the size of this globe of ours. You see, from one of the northern counties up 'bove here Boosey went all the way to the state capital. When he came back he looked solemn with the weight of what he'd garnered."

"I tell you what," he says to us right here, scarcely speaking above a whisper, "if the world's as big 'nother way as 'tis 'tis a whopper!"—Youth's Companion.

Didn't Have to Learn.

Perhaps one of the best stories which Lady Dorothy Nevill has told about Disraeli is that concerning the occasion when a photographer asked him to pose for a photograph leaning on a chair. This at once aroused the indignation of Mrs. Disraeli. "I soon settled that," she said afterward to Lady Dorothy when relating the incident, "for I said, 'Disraeli has always stood alone, and he shall continue to do so.'"

RAILROADS IN GERMANY.

Fine Discipline Because Employees Are All Ex-Army Men.

It is well known that practically all of the railway employees of Prussia have served in the army. When they enter the railway ranks from the army certain credits are allowed for their military service, and certain positions are reserved for army men. This military experience shows its influence on their deportment and discipline in railway service. There is a noticeable orderliness and precision about everything connected with German railways. In respect for authority and strict observance of the rules the German railway employee has no superior.

The traveler will not fail to notice the red capped station master standing at attention on the station platform as the train passes through each station. He will also find the senior signalman, gatemen and other employees connected with the train service always in evidence, standing like sentries as the train passes. The operating official, while riding over the line, can thus take a census of all employees in positions of responsibility. When he alights at a station his rank is at once recognized. The station master immediately salutes and gives a verbal report of the situation at the station. If the official goes into a signal tower the signalman in charge salutes and reports. If he goes into a service house the foreman salutes and gives a brief report of the work in progress.—Railway Age Gazette.

FORKS OF TREES.

They Stay Where They Develop and Never Grow Any Higher.

Some people through careless observation believe that the fork of a forest tree will gradually grow higher from the ground. If they would investigate it would be found that the forks and "heads" of fruit trees are at exactly the same point where they were when first noted.

The state forester in inspecting locust and catalpa groves throughout the state has found owners who have not removed one part of the fork of those trees that have formed forks below the fencepost-length, believing that in years the fork would grow up and a fencepost could be cut below the fork. This erroneous belief is the cause of so much of the delay and neglect of pruning in early life of street and roadside trees.

It should be remembered that the base of a fork or a branch of a tree will always remain at the same distance above the ground. The side branches of some trees, such as the elm, usually continue to grow upward, while those of other trees, such as the maples, incline upward when young, and as the tree grows older the weight of the branches gradually brings it to the horizontal. The latter often makes the removal of large branches necessary, which not only spoils the symmetry of the tree, but usually starts decay, which soon kills the tree.—Indiana Farmer.

Sherraton's Influence.

Thomas Sherraton, although a cabinetmaker by trade, it is quite probable during his life in London, did not actually produce any furniture, as his time was too much taken up by his occupation as Baptist preacher, tractarian, drawing master, designer and publisher to bestow any attention on the manufacture or superintendence of cabinet work. His "Cabinetmaker and Upholsterer's Drawing Book" was published first in 1791 and again in 1793 and 1802. He was possessed of keen critical insight in matters pertaining to high class cabinetmaking, combined with an excellent sense of proportion, sound judgment and purity of taste, and his influence on the style of furniture in the latter part of the eighteenth century was exercised through his designs and criticisms, which had no little weight with the cabinetmakers of his day.

Took Him Down.

A supercilious lawyer, cross examining a young woman whose testimony was likely to result unfavorably to his client, inquired, "You are married, I believe?" "No, sir." "Only about to be married?" "No, sir." "Only wish to be?" "Really, I don't know. Would you advise such a step?" "Oh, certainly! I am a married man myself." "Is it possible? I never should have thought of it! Is your wife deaf or blind?"—St. Louis Republic.

Took Him Down.

A supercilious lawyer, cross examining a young woman whose testimony was likely to result unfavorably to his client, inquired, "You are married, I believe?" "No, sir." "Only about to be married?" "No, sir." "Only wish to be?" "Really, I don't know. Would you advise such a step?" "Oh, certainly! I am a married man myself." "Is it possible? I never should have thought of it! Is your wife deaf or blind?"—St. Louis Republic.

CHAPTER XIV. The Doctor Has a Conscience.

IT was something about him now that didn't fit in much with the Dr. Kirby. It seemed that he had changed. He wasn't any more the same old jolly fellow who had been before. I guess the doctor was getting along toward fifty years old. Drinking was making him think a lot, and thinking was making him look old. He was more of a year older than he had been a year ago.

He kept a quart bottle in his room now. The night after we had taken Sam to see Dr. Jackson he was sitting in his room, and he was hitting it pretty hard.

"Danny," he says to me after awhile, like he was talking out loud to himself, too, "what did you think of Dr. Jackson?"

"I don't like him much," I says.

"Nor I," he says, frowning, and takes a drink. "But he's a blame sight more decent than I am, for all of that."

"Why?" I asks him.

"Because Dr. Jackson," he says, "hasn't the least idea that he isn't decent and getting his money in a decent way, while at one time I was—"

He breaks off and don't say what he was. I asks him, "I was going to say a gentleman?" he says, "but on reflection I doubt if I was ever anything but a cheap imitation."

I seen now the kind of conversations he is always having with himself when he gets just a drunk and is thinking hard. Only this time it happens to be out loud.

Being a gentleman didn't bother me one way or the other. The only reason I didn't want to see them niggers bunched so very bad was only 'cause it was such a low down, catty kind of trick.

"It ain't too late," I says, "to pull out of this nigger scheme yet and get into something more honest."

"I don't know," he says thoughtfully. "I think perhaps it is too late. And he sets there looking like a man that is going over a good many years of life in his mind. Pretty soon he says:

"As far as honesty goes—it isn't that much. O Daniel come judgment! It's about as honest as most medicine givers. It's—"

He stopped and frowned again.

"What is it?"

"It's their being niggers," he says. "That made the difference for me too. I dunno how nor why."

"Do you know what's the matter with me?" he asks.

"I s'pose you want to be a crook," he says, and too crooked to be decent. You've got to be one thing or the other, steady to make it pay."

Then he says:

"Did you ever hear of the descent to Avernum, Danny?"

"I might," I tells him, "and then again I might not. But I ever did I don't remember what she is what is she?"

"It's the chute to the infernal regions," he says. "They say it's a great deal better than it is climbing back."

Well, I seen this nigger scheme of our wasn't the only thing that was troubling Dr. Kirby that night. It was thinking of all the schemes like it in the years just he had went into. It was seeing himself how he had been changing, like another person could see it. That's the main trouble with drinking to forget yourself. You forget the wrong part of yourself.

I left him pretty soon and went along to bed. My room was next to his and there was a door between us so the two could be rented together if wanted. Suppose I went to sleep and woke up with a start out of a dream that had in it millions and millions and millions of niggers, every way you looked, and their mouths was all open red and their eyes were white, fit to scare you out of your shoes.

I heard Dr. Kirby moving around in his room. But pretty soon he sets down and begins to talk to himself. Everything else was quiet. I was kind of worried about him, he had taken so much, and hoped he wouldn't get a notion to go downtown that time of night. So I thinks I will see how he is acting and steps over to the door between the rooms.

The key happened to be on my side, and I unlocked it. But she only opens a little way, for his watch stand was near to the hinge and of the door.

I looked through. He is sitting by the table, looking at a woman's picture that is propped up on it and talking to himself. He has never been open the door, he is not interested. But somehow he don't look drunk. He looks like he had fought his way up out of it somehow.

"God help you!" If you'd only stay away it wouldn't be so hard to go to hell," he says to the picture.

There's a lot of counties in Georgia where the blacks are equal in number to the whites and two or three counties where the blacks number over the whites by two to one. It was for a little town in one of the latter that we plotted ourselves, Dr. Kirby and me and Sam—right into the blackest part of the black belt.

That country is full of big slave plantations where they raise cotton, cotton, cotton and then more cotton.

Some places there shows that things can't be so awful much changed since slavery days, and most of the niggers are sure enough country niggers yet. Some rents their land right out from the owners and some of 'em crops it on the shares, and very many of 'em just works as hands. A lot of 'em don't do aught so well now as they did when their bosses was their masters, they tell me, and then, again, some has done right well on their own hook.

Them that thinks they is awful easy to handle out of a netherland respect for white folks has got another guess coming. They ain't so bad to get along with if you keep it most pliantly shoved into their heads they is niggers. You got to do that special in the black belt just because they is so many of 'em. They is children all their lives, mebbe, till some one minute of craziness they are one of them, and then he is a devil temporary. Mebbe when the crazy fit has passed some white woman is worse off than if she was dead, or mebbe she is dead or mebbe a loathsome fur life, and that nigger is a candidate for a lynching bee and generally elected by an anonymous majority.

Not that all niggers is that a-way, nor half of 'em nor very many of 'em even but you can never tell which nigger it is going to be. So in the black belt the white folks is mighty pertle for who comes along fooling with their black folk.

We didn't know them things then, Dr. Kirby and me didn't. But we was mighty of got into any trouble if it hadn't of been for old Bishop Warren. But that is getting ahead of the story.

We got into that little town—I might just as well call it Cottonville—just about supper time. Cottonville is a little place of not more'n 600 people. I guess 400 of 'em must be niggers.

After supper we got acquainted with pretty nigh all the prominent citizens in town. They was friendly with us, and we was friendly with them.

Talking about this and that they finally edged around to the one thing everybody is sure to get to talking about sooner or later in the south—niggers. And then they gets to telling us about this here Bishop Warren I has mentioned.

He was a black bishop, Bishop Warren was, and had a good deal of white blood into him; they say—an ashy colored feller, with bumps on his face, fat as a possum and as cunning as a fox. He had plenty of brains into his head, too, but his brains had turned sour in his head the last few years, and the bishop had crazy streaks running through his sense now, like fat and lean mixed in a slab of bacon. He used to be friends with a lot of big white folks, and the whites depended on him at one time to preach orderliness and obedience and agriculture and being in their place to the niggers. For years they thought he preached that away. But gradual the suspicion got around that when he was alone with a lot of niggers his nigger blood would get the best of him, and what he preached wasn't white supremacy at all but hopefulness of being equal.

He had been holding some revival meetings in nigger churches right there in that very county and was at it not far away from there right then. The idea had got around he was preaching some most unusual foolishness to the blacks. The whites smelt a rat and wished he would go, for they didn't want to chase him without they had to. Just when we was getting along line one of these prominent citizens said the doctor was we there digging on buying some land?

"No," says the doctor, "we wasn't." They was silence for quite a little spell. Black prominent citizen had mebbe had his hopes of unloading some.

Another prominent citizen makes a little speech that was quite beautiful to hear, and says mebbe we represents some new concept that ain't never been in them parts and is aggering on buying cotton.

"No," the doctor says, "we ain't cotton buyers."

Another prominent citizen has the idea mebbe we is aggering on one of these here inter-urban trolley lines so the Rubes in one village can ride over and visit the Rubes in the next. And another one thinks mebbe we is aggering on a telephone line.

Finally, after every one has a chew of netherland lead tobacco all around, one prominent citizen makes so bold as to set us very courteous if he might inquire what it was we was selling.

The doctor says mebbe.

Pretty soon one of them asks "What kind of medicine?"

The doctor he tells about it.

When he finishes you never seen such a change as had come on to the faces of that bunch. I never seen such disgruntled prominent citizens in my hull life. They looked at each other, embarrassed, like they had been latched at something onery. And they went out, one at a time, saying good night to the hotel keeper and to the most pleted way, taking no notice of us at all. It certainly was a chill.

We sees something is wrong, and we begins to have a notion of what it is. The hotel keeper, he spits out his chow and goes behind his little counter and takes a five cent cigar out of his little showcase and bites the end off careful. Then he leans his elbow on his counter and reads our names to himself out of the register book and looks at us and from us to the names and from the names to us, like he is trying to figure out how he come to let us write 'em there. Then he wants to know where we come from before we come to Atlanta where we had registered from. We tells him we is from the north.

Then he says we order go back north.

"Why?" asks the doctor.

He chewed his cigar pretty nigh up to the middle of it before he answered, and when he spoke it was a soft kind of a drawl—not mad or loud—but like they was sorrowful thoughts working in him.

"Yo' all done struck the worst part of the south to peddle yo' nigger medicine in, sah. I reckon yo' must love 'em a heap to be that concerned over the color of their skin."

And he turned his back on us and went into the back room all by himself.

CHAPTER XV.
Doe Kirby and the Bishop.

WE seen we was in wrong in that town. The doctor says it will be no use trying to introduce our stuff there, and we might as well leave there in the morning and go over to Baldstown, which was a little place about ten miles off the rail road, and make our start there.

So we got a rig the next morning and drove across the country. No one bid us goodby neither, and Dr. Kirby says it's a wonder they rented us the rig.

But before we started that morning we noticed a funny thing. We hadn't so much as spoke to any nigger, except our own nigger Sam, and he couldn't of told all the niggers in that town about the stuff to turn niggers white even if he had set up all night to do it. But every last nigger we saw looked like he knowed something about us. Even after we left town our nigger driver bailed two or three niggers in the road that acted that way. It seemed like they was all awful polite to us. And yet they was different in their politeness than they was to them Georgia folks which they is their netherland born bosses—acted more familiar, somehow as if they knowed we must be thinking about the same thing they was thinking about.

About halfway to Baldstown we stopped at a place to get a drink of water. Seemingly the white folks was away for the day, and an old nigger come up and talked to our driver while Sam and us was at the well.

I seen them cutting their eyes at us, whilst they was unchecking the horses to let them drink, too, and then I hear the one that belonged there say: "Is yo' sunk dat hit air dem?"

"Shah!" says the driver.

"How come yo' so all powerful sunk about it?"

The driver pertended the harness needed some fixing and they went around to the other side of the team and tinkered with one of the traces, a talking to each other. I hear the old nigger say kind of wonderized: "Is dey gwine dar now?"

Sam he was pulling a bucket of water up out of the well for us with a wind up. The doctor says to him:

"Sam, what does all this mean?"

Sam he pertends he don't know what the doctor is talking about. But Dr. Kirby he finally pins him down. Sam hemmed and hawed considerable making up his mind whether he better lie to us or not. Then, all of a sudden, he busted out into an awful fit of laughing and like to of fell in the well. Seemingly he decided for to tell us the truth.

From what Sam says then their bishop has been holding revival meetings in Big Bethel, which is a nigger church right on the edge of Baldstown, and niggers for miles around has been coming right after night, and some of them whooping her up daytimes too.

What he has been prophesying, Sam says, is the coming of a Messiah for the nigger race—a new Elijah, he says, will lead them from out'n their inequality and bring 'em up to white standards right on the spot.

It seems the whites don't know yet just what the bishop's been a preaching. But every nigger for miles on every side of Big Bethel is a listening and a looking for signs and omens, and has been for two three days now. This here half crazy bishop has got 'em worked up to where they is ready to believe anything or do anything.

So the night before when the word got out in Cottonville that we had some scheme to make the niggers white the niggers there took up with the idea that the doctor was mebbe the feller the bishop had been prophesying about and for a sign and a omen and a miracle of his grace and powers was going out to Big Bethel to turn 'em white.

News spreads among niggers quicker than among whites. Since 9 o'clock the night before the news had spread for miles around that Bishop Warren's Messiah was on his way and was going fur to turn the bishop white to show his power and grace and he had with him one he had turned part white and that was Sam and one he had turned clear white, and that was me.

That's what Sam says they are looking fur dozens and scores and hundreds of them niggers round about. Sam he had a little live or six years, and he looked down on all these here ignorant country niggers. So he busts out laughing at first, and he pertends like he don't take no stock in any of it. Besides, he knowed well enough he wasn't spared up by no Messiah, but it was the dope in the bottles done it. But as he told about them goings on, Sam got more and more interested and warmed up to it, and his voice went into a kind of a singsong, like he was prophesying himself.

For my part, I never hear such a lot of dorr foolishness in all my life. But the doctor he says nothing at all. He listens to Sam rambling and rolling out big words and raving and only frowns. He was mebbe thinking how much ornerier this Messiah business would make the bull scheme.

We got to Baldstown early enough, but we didn't go to work there. We waited all that day. They was something working in the doctor's head he wasn't talking about. I supposed he was getting cold feet on the bull proposition. Anyhow, he jest set around the little tavern in that place and does nothing all afternoon.

The weather was fine and we set out in front. We hadn't set there more'n an hour till I could tell we was being noticed by the blacks, not out open and aboveboard. But every now and then one or two or three would pass along down the street and lazy about and take a look at us. They pertended they wasn't noticing, but they was.

Along toward dusk we took a walk. They was a good sized creek at the edge of that little place and on it an old fashioned water mill. Above the mill a little piece was a bridge. We crossed it and walked along a road that followed the creek bank for quite a spell.

They was considerable woods standing along the creek, and around a turn in the road we come onto Sam all of a sudden talking with another nigger. Sam was jest a laying it off to that nigger but he kind of hushed as we come nearer. Down the road quite a little piece was a good sized wooden building that never had been painted and looked like it was the big barn without knowing it the doctor and me had been painting ourselves right toward Big Bethel.

The nigger with Sam he yells out when he sees us:

"Glory be! Hyah dey come! Hyah dey come now!"

And he throwed up his arms and started on a lops up the road toward the church singing out every ten or fifteen yards. A little knot of niggers come out in front of the church when they hear him coming.

Sam, he stood his ground and waited fur us to come up to him kind of apologetic and sneaking looking about something or other.

"What kind of lies have you been telling these niggers, Sam?" says the doctor, very sharp and short and mad like.

"I dunno how come dey get all dem nigger notions in dey fool head," Sam says, "but dey all waitin' dar inside de church do—some of de mos' fall'n an' de mos' prair'n ones o' de Big Bethel congregation been dar fo' de las' hour a-waitin' an' a-waitin', spite o' de fact dat reg'lar meetin' ain't gwine be called twell arter supper. De bishop he dar too."

We seen a little knot of them down the road there in front of the church gathering around the nigger that had been with Sam. They all starts toward us. But one man steps out in front of them all and turns toward them and holds his hands up and waves them back. They all stops in their tracks.

Then he turns his face toward us and comes slow and solemn down the road in our direction, walking with a cane and moving very dignified. He was a couple of hundred yards away.

But as he come closer we gradual ly seen him plainer and plainer. He was a big man and stout and dressed very neat in the same kind of rig as white bishops wear, with one of these white collars that buttons in the back.

He stops, the bishop does, about ten yards from us and looks us over.

"Ah yo' de gentleman know'n ter dis hyah sinful generation by de style an' de entitlemen' o' Doctor Hakley Kirby?" he asks the doctor, very ceremonious and grand.

The doctor give him a look that wasn't very encouraging, but he nod ded to him.

"Will yo' damns yo' sehvant in or deh dat we kin hol' converse an' com' munion in de midst er privacy?"

The doctor he nods to Sam, and Sam moosers along toward the church.

"Now then," says the doctor, and den and sharp, "take off your hat and tell me what you want."

The bishop's hand rose up to his head with a jerk before he thought. Then it stops there, while him and the doctor looks at each other. The bishop's mouth opens like he was wondering but he slowly pulls his hat off and stands there bareheaded in the road. But he wasn't really humble that bishop.

"Now," says the doctor, "tell me in as straight talk as you've got what all this d—d foolishness among you niggers means."

A queer kind of look passed over the bishop's face. He hadn't expected to be met jest that way, mebbe. Whether he himself had really believed in the coming of that new messiah he had been predicting I never could settle in my mind.

"De world has gone fo' th among he fall'n an' de peat in heart," he says, "dat er man has come accredited w' signs an' w' mirabls an' de power of de spirit to lay his han on de sons o' Ham an' ter make 'em des de asipe in collab as de yuther sons of sa'th."

"Then that was a lie," says the doctor. "I did come here to try out some stuff to change the color of negro skins. That's all. Is that all you want to know?"

The bishop heems and haws and fiddles with his stick, and then he says: "Suh, will dis yeh preps shun sho'ly do de work?"

Dr. Kirby tells him it will do, the work all right.

And then the bishop, after beating around the bush some more, comes out with his idea. Whether he expected there would be any Messiah come or not, of course he knowed the doctor wasn't him. But he is willing to boost the doctor's game as long as it boosts his game. He wants to be in on the deal. He wants part of the graft. He wants to get together with the doctor on a plan before the doctor sees the niggers. And if the doctor don't want to keep on with the miracle and if the bishop shows him how he could do him good with no miracle attached. For he has an awful holt on them niggers, and he says so will sell thousands and thousands of bottles. What he is looking fur jest now is his little take-out.

That was his craftiness and his cunningness working in him. But all of a sudden one of his crazy streaks come bulging to the surface. It come with a wild, eager look in his eyes.

"Suh," he cries out all of a sudden, "ef yo' kin make me white, fo' Gawd saacs do hit! Do hit! Ef yo' does I gwine ter bless yo' all yo' days!"

"Yo' don't know—no one kin guess or comprehend—what des bein' white would mean ter me! Lawd, lawd!" he says, his voice soft spoken, but more eager than ever as he went on, and pleading something pitiful to hear.

"See think of all de goodness blood in me! Gawd knows de nights er my youth I'se laid awake twell de dawn come red in de east a cryin' out ter him only to ter he white! Des ter be white! Don' min' dem black, black niggers dar. Don't think er dem dey ain't wuth nothin' no stien fo' no fate but what dey got. But me, what's done kep me from gwine ter de top but dat one thing—I wasn't white! Hit air too late now—too late fo' dem ambitions I done trifle with an' above behin me—hit's too late fo' dat! But ef I was dey ter git one 11 year o' hit—no 11 year o' bein' white—befo' I did."

Then the doctor says slow and even, but not severe:

You go back to your people now, bishop and tell them they've made a mistake about me. And if you can, undo the harm you've done with this Messiah business. As far as this stuff of mine is concerned, there's none of it for you nor for any other negro. You tell them that. There's none of it been sold yet and there never will be."

Then we turned away and left him standing there in the road, still with his hat off and his face working.

CHAPTER XVI.
The End of the Game.

WALKING back toward the little tavern the doctor says:

"Danny, this is the end of this game. These people down here and that half cracked, half crooked old bishop have made me see a few things about the Afro-American brother. It wasn't a good scheme in the first place. And this wasn't the place to start it going, anyhow—I should have tried the niggers in the big towns. But I'm out of it now, and I'm glad of it. What we want to do is to get away from here tomorrow—back to Atlanta and fix up a scheme to rob some widows and orphans, or something halfway respectable like that."

Well I drew a long breath. I was with Dr. Kirby in everything he done, for he was my friend and I didn't intend to quit him. But I was glad we was out of this and hadn't sold none of that dope. We both felt better because we hadn't. All them millions we was going to make—shucks! We didn't neither one of us give a dern about them getting away from us. All we wanted was jest to get away from there and not get mixed up with no nigger problems any more. We eat supper, and we set around awhile, and we went to bed pretty middling early so as to get a good start in the morning.

We got up early, but early as it was, the devil had been up earlier in that neighborhood. About 4 o'clock that morning a white woman about a half a mile from the village had been attacked by a nigger.

The countryside was up with guns and pistols. It wasn't no trouble guessing what would happen to him when they ketch him.

"And," says Dr. Kirby when we heard of it, "I hope to high heaven they do catch him."

They wasn't much doubt they would either. They was already beating up the woods and bushes and gangs was riding up and down the roads, and every nigger's house for miles around was being searched and watched.

We soon seen we would have trouble atrociously high infant death rates in that of impure milk.

Impure milk has, and still does, reap a terrible harvest, and among those who are least able to help themselves. Carrying its disease germs, its decomposed organic matter, its filth of various kinds in a liquid form, it is necessarily taken by many children without having been heated or purified in any way. Its malignant contents attack the child in its weakest organs, those of digestion, and the results enter into those census figures referred to.

Much can be done to safeguard the milk supply of the cities, much is being done now and more will be done in the future, as fast as the public awakes to the tremendous importance of the subject.

One of the quickest ways to get results in your campaign to protect your own family from impure milk is to thoroughly investigate the source of supply and see that the milk comes from healthy cows, and is handled in such a way that it reaches you within twelve hours after milking that it has not been warmer than 50 degrees since milking, and that there has been no possible chance of dust or dirt of any character getting into it.

The very best and most satisfactory way to secure pure milk, at the lowest possible cost is to keep a cow yourself if your circumstances will permit. All you will need is a small stable and a lot of paddock where the cow can get out into the fresh air for exercise. Even under city or suburban conditions milk can be produced for from three to five cents a quart, buying all the feed.

While a number of factors combine to bring about the early passing away of a comparatively large proportion of the little children who are unfortunate enough to be born in a large city, the scientists who give their time and thought to these serious problems are almost unanimously agreed that the greatest single factor behind these getting horses and a rig in the village to take us to the railroad. Many of the horses was being ridden in the man hunt, and most of the men who might have done the driving was busy at that too. The hotel keeper himself had left his place standing wide open and went out. We didn't get any breakfast, neither.

"Danny," says the doctor, "we'll just put enough money to pay the bill in an envelope on the register here and strike out on shanks' pony. It's only nine or ten miles to the railroad—we'll walk."

"But how about our stuff?" I asks him. We had two big cases full of sample bottles of that dope, besides our suitcases.

"Hang the dope!" says the doctor, "I don't ever want to see it or hear of it again! We'll leave it here. Put the things out of your suit case into mine and leave that here too. Sam can carry mine. I want to be on the move."

So we left, with Sam carrying the one suit case. It wasn't 9 in the morning yet, and we was starting out pretty empty for a long walk.

"Sam," says the doctor, as we was passing that there Big Bethel church, "were you at the meeting here last night?"

"Yass, sah."

"I suppose it was a pretty time of fair after they found out their Elijah wasn't coming after all?"

Sam he wailed his eyes, and then he kind of chuckled.

"Well sah," he says, "I s'pose de mos' on 'em don't know dat yet!"

The doctor asks him what he means.

"It seems the bishop most of done some thinking after we left him in the road or on his way back to that church. They there Elijah was on the way to 'em, and the bishop's credit was more or

The Town Cow.

It is a surprising fact to many to learn that there are a very considerable number of cows kept within the limits of every great city. Cows are a familiar sight on the streets of many small towns, but in our vast congested urban centers the sight of one is very unusual. Of course the number of cows here is much smaller in proportion to the population, and it is very unfortunate in many ways that there are not more cows dwelling in our midst, so to speak.

The city cow when owned and managed by a professional milkman has proved to be a considerable menace to health in the past, entirely due to the way in which such animals have been handled. We do not wish to be understood as advocating the operation of commercial dairy herds under urban conditions, but we do believe firmly that it would be a great agency for the better health of city children if there were more city cows owned by their parents.

Census figures show that the infant mortality rate in large cities is much higher than among children of the same class, age, and mode of life in smaller towns or in the country.

While a number of factors combine to bring about the early passing away of a comparatively large proportion of the little children who are unfortunate enough to be born in a large city, the scientists who give their time and thought to these serious problems are almost unanimously agreed that the greatest single factor behind these congregation and disobedience of the bishop which was their guide. And he sent 'em word, Elijah was dead, that the bishop was his trustee's servant, and into the keeping of the bishop was given the power to deal with his people and prepare them for the great day to come, and the bishop would give the word of his coming.

But the thing that seemed to interest the doctor and made him frown was the idea that the niggers round about there in the house (except White Serge) $14.95 at one price

ANY Wool Suit

More than one hundred suits in sizes for girls and misses, and women of regular build or stout. Former prices were $19.75 to $50 with the greater part of the stock between $35 and $50.

ALL Coats at $8.75 and $15.00

At the smaller price are regular $15 values, and at $15 are coats worth to $25.

Suits—

balance of summer stock! like stripes: Made one; French serge, diagonal serge, Men's wear serge, Men's suits, Bedford cord, summer cheviot and novelty cloths in mixed tones. Black, navy, light navy, Copenhagen, tan, brown, taupe, light gray, shepherd checks and hair-

Coats—

—fashionable, and of the highest style type; durable, and for all utility purposes. Coats of French serge, diagonal serge, silk moire, wool repp, wool eponge, wool crepon, silk bengaline, Bedford cord, covert cloth and novelty cloths; lined entire or partially with bright, plain silks or silks printed in Bulgarian tones. Outaway models, for the most part, and a sprinkling of square corner garments. Three-quarter lengths and loose or medium backs, some belted, and plain or fancy collar and cuffs. A sale unusual!

With original prices already lower than elsewhere, these new rates on fashionable millinery is nothing short of marvelous.

$22.50, $25.00 to $32.50 Hats, Half Price.

A Notable Collection of Dresses In Exclusive Fashions

In one sense this is a Fashion Exhibition because dresses just like them will not be seen elsewhere about town. They are rich in dignified laces and bands, marvels of color and perfect in match. Materials are crepons, honey-comb eponge, striped and plain crepe voile used together, and other fabrics of a high type approved by fashion. Unusual drapes, new collar styles and painstaking dress-making distinguish them. The group is small—but exclusive—and not so costly as to make you envious if you possess but moderate means.

Women's section, second floor.
